Dear Stefano,

I am writing in regard to your revised manuscript, MS-12920-2, "Reporting Peers' Wrongdoing: Experimental Evidence on the Effect of Financial Incentives on Morally Controversial Behavior," that was re-submitted on June 25th 2022 for publication in the Journal of the European Economic Association.

I have now received timely reports from all four original referees on your paper. All agree that the revision has gone a long way to address the concerns and issues that they raised in the original submission (related to generalizability, methodology and the interpretation of some of the findings). All four were favourably inclined towards your paper originally, and now all support publication of your paper in JEEA. From my reading of your revision, I entirely agree with this assessment and am happy to accept the paper.

I look forward to being able to publish your manuscript shortly (the Appendix should be sent in as a separate file to be placed as supplementary material/web appendix). Your paper will make a fine contribution to JEEA, and is a remarkable experiment pushing forward the frontier on incentives for whistleblowing. At this stage, you should also start considering to prepare the files necessary to adhere to JEEA's data replication policy – and please do consider submitting teaching materials for your paper.

Thank you for submitting your work to JEEA. I have enjoyed reading your manuscript and have learned from it. Please feel free to contact me if you have any questions about my decision, or if you have any difficulty in reading any of the attachments.

Yours sincerely,

Imran Rasul.
